

ERNOP & Philea Call for Practitioner Experts

Contribute to a Special Issue of ERNOP Research Notes on Justice Philanthropy

Are you interested in justice philanthropy and in bridging the gap between academic research and practical applications? This is your opportunity to showcase your expertise, expand your knowledge, and contribute to the development of actionable insights for the philanthropy community.

For the purpose of addressing the topic at the Philea Forum in Lisbon on June 2-5, 2025, ERNOP, the European Research Network on Philanthropy (ERNOP), and Philea (Philanthropy Europe Association) are preparing a special issue of Research Notes dedicated to justice philanthropy. This initiative aims to translate cutting-edge academic research into accessible and practical summaries, empowering practitioners to apply evidence-based approaches to their work. The issue is prepared in collaboration with Philea and will be shared with the conference participants and the philanthropy community at large.

What Are ERNOP Research Notes?

ERNOP Research Notes are concise, visually appealing, and easy-to-read two-page summaries of academic articles written by ERNOP members. These notes distill complex research into practical insights tailored for philanthropy practitioners.

This special issue will spotlight justice philanthropy—addressing equity, fairness, and systemic change in philanthropic efforts. Practitioner experts like you will collaborate with academics to ensure the relevance and accessibility of these insights for the broader philanthropy community.

Why Participate?

As a practitioner expert, you will:

- Gain direct access to academic work on justice philanthropy, including cutting-edge insights on equity, and effective strategies.
- Position yourself or your organisation as a thought leader in justice philanthropy.
- Contribute to making academic knowledge more accessible and relevant for practitioners, enhancing the effectiveness of philanthropy.
- Connect with leading academics and practitioners in the field.

How It Works

1. Sign up: Join the ERNOP database of practitioner experts here.
2. Matchmaking: Your expertise and interests will be matched with relevant academic articles on justice philanthropy.
3. Research Note Creation: Once matched, you'll be invited to create a Research Note in collaboration with the original author.
4. Publish & Share: Your Research Note will be reviewed, approved, and published on the ERNOP website, with your name and organization for recognition if you wish. We will also distribute the Special Issue at the Philea Forum 2025.

Creating a Research Note will take approximately 4 hours, and you'll have a 6-week timeframe to complete it after being matched with an article.

Who Should Apply?

This call is ideal for individuals who:

- Have expertise or strong interest in justice philanthropy and related topics.
- Can understand and interpret academic research and translate it into practical, easy-to-read summaries.
- Are committed to advancing philanthropy by contributing to more equitable and just practices.
